THREATENED OFFICERS WITH GUN

SHERIFF AND DEPUTY HAVE EXCITING TIME WITH FORGER.

John Hughes, ex-convict, wanted in Ann Arbor for forgery, was arrested at the home of his father-in-law Charles Cook, a farmer living near Eldorado, South Branch township, last week Thursday afternoon by Sheriff Richardson and Undersheriff L. J. Kraus.

Hughes' wife was visiting her parents and the former joined her here first of last week. He had been here but a few days when a detective showed up in Grayling and soon found out the whereabouts of the man he was after. The detective and the two officers went to the Cook home and found Hughes out in one of the fields at work. He was informed by the officers as to what they wanted and placed under arrest.

Hughes requested that he be given time to wash up and dress, and entered the house closely followed by one of the officers. After washing up he said he wanted to look for his hat and entered a bedroom and reaching behind a curtain pulled out a shot gun and quickly leveled it at the detective and ordered him to "Get out," which he did in a hurry. Undersheriff Kraus hearing the commotion went into the house to investigate and he too suddenly looked into the muzzle of a shot gun. He also wasn't long in getting out, for nobody cares to take a chance with a shot gun in the hands of a man who means business.

Hughes slightly opened the door and poking out the muzzle was just raising his gun to fire at Sheriff Richardson and the Pinkerton man, when Kraus made a quick shot with his revolver shooting the fugitive thru the left hand. The latter dropped his gun and retired to the upstairs, where for two hours he defied every effort of the officers to get him out.

In the meantime the officers were trying to keep out of range of the shot gun and also to keep the house in view so that the fugitive could not escape. Hughes finally came down and gave himself up, no doubt, his hand severely maiming him, hastening his decision to do so.

He was charged with the crime of forgery. One check claimed to be forged was on the Rose City Bank

BIG AID TO MICHIGAN FARMERS

BETTER SIRE TRAIN TO CARRY MANY INSTRUCTIVE EXHIBITS.

Crawford County is making extensive preparations to receive the "better sire special" which will tour the lower peninsula of Michigan through co-operative arrangements made by the Michigan Holstein-Friesian association, M. A. C., the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads and other state agricultural organizations.

County Agent R. D. Bailey is busy making arrangements with farmers who desire to exchange their scrub and grade bulls for pure bred stock. J. C. Burton is said to be planning to trade a pure bred Shorthorn bull for one pure bred Holstein sire. The Grange at Grayling is interested in the movement and is taking all possible steps to further the bull exchange plan. The train is scheduled to stop at Grayling on Tuesday, Aug. 9.

At least seven cars in all will be included in the train—two to carry the pure bred bulls which will be traded, two exhibit cars, one car of demonstration cattle, one flat car for demonstration purposes and a lecture car.

The first exhibit car will show the food value of milk and the care and uses of milk and milk products on the farm. It will be of interest chiefly to housewives and will be in charge of Mrs. Louise Campbell of M. A. C., home demonstration agent leader. In the second car will be the combined exhibits of the dairy husbandry, dairy manufacturing, crops, soils and farm mechanics departments of M. A. C. The need of considering several different phases of farming in order to be successful in the dairy industry will be stressed.

GETTING READY FOR NATIONAL GUARD

ADJUTANT GEN. Q. M. C. AND OTHERS ALREADY HERE.

August 8th will find the Hanson State Military reservation at Lake Margrethe a lively city of Michigan guardsmen. The men will leave their respective home stations on the 5th and arrive in camp the next morning. The supply company of Port Huron will arrive a day or two earlier in order to have everything ready for the men. There will be many hungry mouths to feed when the troop trains pull in and unless the supply department is in good running order some of the men are doomed to disappointment and hunger. However there isn't the slightest danger in that respect.

The Quartermaster department, under Maj. LeRoy Pearson, has been here for several weeks and has everything in readiness for the encampment. Also Adjutant General John S. Bersey has moved his offices to the reservation. Major Loren C. Grieves, senior instructor of the U. S. army has taken up quarters at the camp. His home is in Lansing and a few days ago his home burned therefore he came to the reservation to remain until a new home can be built. The rifle range has been put into the best of condition. A new telephone system for communication throughout the range. This will enable the men in the firing field to communicate with the men behind the parapets. An ammunition house has been constructed convenient to the rifle and artillery ranges.

A fine new cement block garage is being constructed near the warehouse. This will meet a long felt need. It will be ready by the time the troops arrive.

Some of the officers are enjoying the company of their families. Among them are the following: Mrs. LeRoy Pearson and son Charles; Mrs. O. H. Tower and daughters Ruth and Margaret; and Mrs. Loren C. Grieves and two sons all of Lansing. Major R. E. Cummings of the U. S. army of cavalry instruction, under Major Grieves, arrived in camp Tuesday. He was accompanied by his wife and little son "Billy." They are occupying rooms at the Officers club house.

THE GOODFELLOWSHIP CLUB LADIES TO ENTERTAIN AT OFFICERS CLUB HOUSE

AUGUST 10.

A year ago the Goodfellowship club gave a very successful afternoon party at the Officers Club House at Lake Margrethe.

The ladies are planning to give another one of these pleasant affairs Aug. 10th. There will be tables for "500" as well as cozy corners and easy chairs for those not caring to play cards. Fifty cents will be charged which will include lunch. Every lady is cordially invited to attend. Autos will be provided and will start from Mrs. Geo. Alexander's home at 2:15 o'clock.

GRAYLING WINS ANOTHER ONE.

Cheboygan's Winning Streak Broken After Meeting Grayling Last Sunday.

Grayling M. C. defeated Cheboygan here Sunday in a good game of ball 9 to 3. It was the first defeat in the last ten games for Cheboygan. "Babe" Lauret pitching for the locals was too much for the visitors and after the second inning did not have much trouble in turning them back. Kohagen who started for Cheboygan was hit hard and went wild in the 3rd inning and was relieved by Berkey. He did not fare much better as the local boys had their batting clothes on; many long hits were made. E. Johnson getting two triples and Carl Doroh and "Babe" Lauret one each. Smith for Grayling led at bat, getting four hits out of five times up. Carl Doroh made two fine catches in the field that brought the crowd to their feet. Grayling hit the visiting pitchers for 14 hits for a total of 25 bases and Cheboygan got 9 hits for a total of 12 bases. Lauret of the locals struck out 11 men while the Cheboygan pitchers had but 5 strike outs between them.

The all around playing of the home boys is getting much better each game and they are now ready for the best teams they can get games with. The crowd was much better and it is hoped it will improve much more as the locals lost money on the game Sunday.

Score by Innings.
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Grayling ... 2 3 2 0 1 1 0 0 9

Batteries for Grayling were Lauret and E. Johnson; for Cheboygan, Kohagen, Berkey and Fish. The crowd was much better and it is hoped it will improve much more as the locals lost money on the game Sunday.

BABIES PASS FIRST DANGER MONTH WELL

Special Care on Mothers' Part Will Curb Effects of Weather, Says Authority.

Lansing, July 27.—June, the first of the four dangerous months for babies, ended with a victory for mothers and babies against the enemies of infant health, according to statistics for the month compiled by the Michigan department of health. The infant mortality rate for the state was held to 68 per 1,000 living births, compared to 70 for May.

"Special care of babies now will do much to curb effects of the hot weather," states Harriet Leck, director of the bureau of child hygiene and public health nursing. "The mother who has a baby a mother gives her child an 80 per cent better chance of living than if she should use the bottle-feeding method. If the baby must be bottle-fed, however, a 24 hour supply of food should be prepared at one time, put in carefully sterilized nursing bottles, and kept on ice until ready for warming at feeding times. During warm weather the baby should have sponge baths daily; should be kept in the shade out of doors, and should not be handled more than absolutely necessary. Flies must be considered as among the baby's worst enemies. Public health, visiting, Red Cross, and tuberculosis nurses in 45 counties are now concentrating upon the problem of protecting infant life in their communities. Fifteen additional counties have made application for county public health nurses.

The reading circle books are Free-land's "Modern Elementary School Practice," Engleman's "Moral Education in School and Home," Smith's "What Can Literature Do For Me."

The bulletins are No. 4 The Teaching of Reading; No. 10, Word Study and Spelling; No. 30 Language Lessons. M. E. Hoyt, Comm.

7-21-3. AUTO DRIVERS NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that reckless and fast driving and driving without the regulation lights of not less than one light in front and one light in the rear, must be discontinued on the streets of Grayling. Such carelessness is dangerous and unfair to pedestrians and other drivers who try and obey the law. It is my intention to cause the arrest of such careless offenders, and this warning is given for the purpose of cautioning auto drivers. Alvin LaChapelle, Constable.

GAVE DINNER PARTY AT 500 ACRE FARM

CELEBRATED OPENING OF SUB-DIVISION FOR RESORTERS.

Site On Houghton Lake Sure to Be Favored Spot for Summer Homes.

Wishing to celebrate the opening of a new sub-division of land at Houghton lake for sale to those wanting to build summer homes at that popular resort, Mr. Nels Michelson celebrated the event Saturday by inviting in a number for a dinner at the farm.

He came to Grayling early last week and spent a few days with his sons and their families at Lake Margrethe and Friday left for his 500 acre farm at Houghton lake to prepare the way for the guests that were to follow next day.

It was an ideal morning and a delightful ride with exception of an occasional bump in the road which the highway commissioners are as rapidly as possible substituting with fine smooth highways. Those in the party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Michelson and sons Nels and Frank, Jr.; A. E. Michelson, and Mr. L. R. Nicholson, all of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Michelson of Lake Margrethe and little niece Miss Jean Widger of Pontiac and Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Schumann of Grayling. In Mr. Michelson's party that went the day before were Nelson Hartwick and Carman Boone of Detroit.

The farm is under management of Mr. and Mrs. John Oliver, and the latter proved herself to be a most excellent cook. The fine chicken dinner that was set before the banquets that day would have done credit to Delmonico's best chef. The food was delicious and there was a plenty of everything—supper, rich cream and delicious milk which added largely to the dinner. Besides those already mentioned Amos Buck, manager of the Nels Michelson Lumber company, was a guest at the dinner. After a thirty mile ride that morning all were hungry and did full justice to the dinner.

While there are 500 acres of land under cultivation in the Michelson farm, it must not be presumed that that is all the land that Mr. Michelson owns around Houghton lake. At one time his company owned 400,000 acres about the lake, covering two-thirds of Houghton lake beach, and it is generally considered that this is the largest lake in Michigan. And even this late day this company owns 25 miles of shore line property. They have had at times thousands of cattle grazing over the lands, and the crop of hay on the marshes is always so large that it has never all been cut, and thousands of loads have been taken off in a single season, and shipped to outside markets.

The Sub-Division. The sub-division that is soon to be come a village of happy summer homes, is located south of the farm. This will be platted into 97 lots. Already stakes are set according to survey and an outline of the place is in blue print. It lies directly across the street from the Houghton Heights. The latter place is settled largely by people from Mt. Pleasant. It has a hotel and several hundred cottages all built and occupied, boat livery and splendid accommodations for guests and resorters. The demand for lots in the new sub-division is bound to be brisk. During the time that the party were out looking over the site lot seekers were largely in evidence and although the lines were not fully perfected and approved ten lots were sold then and there. Mr. Michelson says that he will retain the land where the farm house is located for a fine large hotel, with 150 feet frontage on the lake.

Looking from this high place bordering the lake at this place could be seen hundreds of small fishing boats on the lake. One fisherman remarked that after he and his partner had each caught all the wall-eyed pike that the law would allow, they caught as many more and let them go, just for the sport of catching them.

Houghton lake is 15 miles long and about five miles wide. Besides being a wonderful lake for bass and pike, it is renowned for its wild rice fields, where millions of wild duck come to feed in the fall, and where the hunter bags his game. Houghton is a long season lake for after the resorting season is over the hunter holds over for several months of sport and recreation. The bathing beach proved its attraction by the hundreds of bathers that were enjoying its waters.

Another feature in which Mr. Michelson takes a lot of pride is Houghton lake village. Here also is a resort with many cottages and several fine hotels, stores and other business places.

Mr. Michelson decided that he and Messrs. Hartwick and Boone would remain at the farm a couple of more days and then return from there directly to Detroit. The others left soon after four o'clock for their respective homes.

Mr. L. R. Nicholson, who was one of the party, is the business manager of the Michelson Land & Home company in Detroit, and will have active charge in promoting the sales of the lots of the new sub-division. This place will be known as Houghton Lake Park. The street abounding the south will be Mt. Pleasant avenue; on the lake side, Lake Drive; street will divide the property lengthwise; Grayling and Byron streets are to cross the property the narrow way. Of course the people of this city are pleased to be honored by having a street in this place named in honor of it.

COUNTY SCHOOL NOTES.

M. J. Mitscha has accepted a position in the high school at South Boardman. We regret that Mr. and Mrs. Mitscha are leaving Crawford County. Mr. Mitscha was one of the strong efficient teachers of the county.

Commissioner M. E. Hoyt, was in Mt. Pleasant last week attending the Northern Central Commissioner's meeting. Work of the year was discussed. Crawford County's report was exceptionally good as there are two centers about to vote on consolidation for rural agricultural school and another to start toward the township unit system.

Districts 3, 4, 5, of Grayling township are petitioning for consolidation.

Due to an error in posting notices election for consolidation in Frederic and Maple Forest Township has been adjourned.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

I have been appointed to manage the affairs of the City Coal Yard of the J. M. Bunting estate, and all matters relative thereto will be adjusted by me.

All orders for coal, immediate or future delivery hereafter, may be left with me and same will receive prompt and careful attention. Frank Sales, Grayling, Mich.

Better Cars are now Built NASH Builds Them.

Nash prices are reduced, since July 2.

This conforms to our statement made last October that Nash prices would be maintained until at least July 1, 1921.

The reasons were plain. Until manufacturing costs were lower we could not cut price without cutting value, as Nash prices were not inflated.

We pointed out then that while the average rise in the price of motor cars for a four-year period had been 76% the price of Nash cars had been raised but 31%.

This 31% included the addition of cord tires as standard equipment and many other additions and refinements which added materially to the value of Nash cars.

So we re-affirmed our fixed intention of rigidly upholding the high quality of Nash cars.

Since then every effort of the Nash organization has been centered on effecting sound manufacturing economies.

New labor-saving devices were added and production practice so perfected that every process of Nash manufacture is a model of efficiency and economy.

The savings have been substantial. And they demonstrate as nothing else could demonstrate the remarkable Nash ability to produce fine cars at the lowest possible cost.

Even while working production costs downward, we were improving Nash cars still further.

Now we can announce a greater Nash value than ever at a reduced purchase price.

At the new prices the leadership of Nash cars is even more emphatically apparent.

If your salesmen spend unproductive time going from prospect to prospect, because of slow transportation, it is money lost. Slow transportation robs them of part of their time—time that might just as well be turned into sales.

A Ford Runabout furnishes quick transportation at the lowest possible cost. By equipping your salesmen with Ford cars, you will enable them to devote more energy to selling goods.

MANY of you car owners have learned that quantity production of itself doesn't put long and satisfactory service into a tire.

You find something more to your liking in the policy of the makers of Hartford Tires.

They think too much of the Hartford Tire reputation to produce a single tire beyond the limit of careful and painstaking workmanship. And more people daily appreciate the real economy in this method of tire building.

OPEN ATTACK ON CORPORATION TAX

BATTLE CREEK FIRM CONTENDS LEVY ON CORPORATIONS IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL

FILES REPORT WITHOUT CHECK

Importance of Test Case May Result in Calling Early Meet of Supreme Court.

Lansing—The expected attack on the constitutionality of the new corporation tax, passed by the legislature during the regular session this year to raise $8,000,000 to meet the deficit of the state, was launched in the supreme court July 21 by the Union Steam Pump Sales company of Battle Creek.

The corporation tax law requires corporations to pay three and one-half mills upon each dollar of their paid-up capital and surplus, except that no corporation shall be permitted to pay less than $50, and none shall be required to pay more than $10,000.

Corporations are required to submit certified checks for this tax when they file their annual corporation reports in July and August. The Union Steam Pump Sales company submitted its annual report to Charles J. Deland, secretary of state without the required check. Mr. Deland refused to accept the report, and the company, through its attorneys, Burrill Hamilton and J. L. Hooper, of Battle Creek, and B. D. Chandler, of Hudson, immediately filed suit in the supreme court for mandamus to compel the secretary of state to accept the report without the tax payment.

It is doubtful whether the matter can be submitted to the court and an order to show cause issued before the time for payment of the tax expires September 1. The importance of the case may result in a call of the court to meet here before the time originally planned, however.

The contention of the pump company is that the corporation law is in violation of three sections of the Michigan constitution and of the fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution. The company's case is based upon the contention that the levy is a tax, whereas the attorney general and the governor, who framed it, contend that it is a fee and not a tax.

The tax is discriminatory, the attorneys for the company contend, in that the $50 minimum and $10,000 maximum results in wide divergence between the rate paid under it by various corporations. Their brief points out that the company they represent would be compelled to pay $150 on each $1,000, while the Reo Motor Car company would pay less than 57 cents a $1,000, the Burroughs Adding Machine company less than 30, Dodge Brothers, Inc., less than 16, and the Ford Motor company less than 8 cents on each $1,000.

SAYS SMALL EMBEZZLED $500,000

Illinois Executive and Two Officials Indicted by Grand Jury.

Springfield, Ill.—Gov. Len Small, Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling and Verne E. Curtis, of Grant Park, were indicted by the Sangamon county grand jury for conspiracy and embezzlement in connection with the interest earnings of the state treasurer's office.

The indictment charged that the three obtained "divers grants, warrants, vouchers and documents to the amount of $2,000,000." The investigation hinges on the $10,000,000 loan of state funds to Armour & Co. and Swift & Co. The money was listed as deposited in the "Grant Park bank" drawing two per cent interest while the packers' notes are said to have drawn 7 and 8 per cent. It is the difference in the interest earnings that form the crux of the investigation.

Much interest is centered in the controversy, the greatest political scandal in Illinois' history. Gov. Small claims that as chief executive, he is above jury, warrant or any agency of the judicial branch of the government.

CHAPTER XIII—Continued.

I shut my eyes and held my breath. Mr. Hornack hadn't the slightest idea what this ice he was skating over, or how this easy mention of Mr. Van Britt might be just like rubbing salt into a fresh cut. By this time it was growing dark, and we were running into Port City, and I was mightily glad that it couldn't last much longer. The boss didn't speak again until the yard switches were clanking under the car, and then he said:

"Upon is well able to take care of himself, Hornack, and I don't think we need worry about him," and then over his shoulder to me: "Jimnie, it's time to wake up. We're pulling in."

As he always did on a return trip, Mr. Norcross ran up to his office to see if there was anything pressing, before he did anything else. May was still at his desk, and in answer to the boss' question he shook his head.

"No; nobody that couldn't wait," he said, referring to the day's callers. Mr. Hatch was up with a couple of men that I didn't know, but he only wanted to inquire if you would be in the office this evening after dinner. I told him I'd find out when you came, and let him know by phone."

I thought, after all that had happened, Hatch certainly had his nerve to want to come and make a talk with the man his hired assassins were trying to murder. But if Mr. Norcross took that view of it, he didn't show it. On the contrary, he told Fred it would be all right to telephone Hatch; that he was coming down after dinner and the office would be open as usual.

Escorted out and went to Mr. Van Britt's office at the other end of the hall. Bobby Kolos was there, holding the office down, and I asked him where I could find Tarbell. Luckily, he was able to tell me that Tarbell was at that moment down in the station restaurant, eating his supper; so down I went and waited in with my story of the Hatch call, and how it was to be repeated a little later.

"I'll be there," said Tarbell, and with that I took off my hat, I mugged off up-town to the club to get my own dinner.

When I broke into the grill-room at the railroad club, I found that Mr. Norcross had beaten me to it by a few minutes, but he had already ordered his dinner at a table with Major Kendrick. I suppose, by good rights, I ought to have gone off into a corner by myself, but I saw that the boss had tipped a chair at the end of the table where I usually sat, so I just went ahead and took it.

Coming in late that way, I didn't get the first of the talk, but I took it that the boss had been saying something about the fact that he was having the major for a table-mate two days in succession.

"The honor is mine, my dear boy," the genial old Kentuckian was telling him as I sat down. "I was by way of picking up a bit of information late this afternoon that I thought ought to be passed on to you without any great delay."

The boss looked up quickly. "What is it, major?" he inquired. "Are you going to tell me that something new has broken loose?"

"I wish I might," he said, but he pulled definite—I do so, Graham. But I can't say more than that I've been telling it, each at the Commercial club, that Hatch and John Marshall—you know him—that Sedgwick stock jobber who has been so active in this Citizens' Storage & Warehouse business—have finally come together."

"In a business way, you mean?"

"The major gave a right and left twist to his big mustaches and shrugged one shoulder.

"They are most probably calling it business," he rejoined.

The boss nodded. "I know what has happened. In spite of the fact that the local people know that their economic salvation depends upon a wide and even distribution of their C. S. & W. stock, there has been a good bit of buying and selling and swapping around. I remember you prophesied that in a little while we'd have another trust in the hands of a few men. You may recollect that I didn't dispute your prediction. I merely said that our ground leases—the fact that all of the C. S. & W. plants and buildings are on railroad land—would still give us the whip-hand over any new monopoly that might be formed."

"Yes, sir; I remember you said that," the major allowed.

"Very good, Marshall, and his pocket syndicate may have acquired a voting control in C. S. & W. and, they may be willing now to pinch up an alliance with Hatch. But in that case the new monopoly will still lack the one vital ingredient: the power to fix prices. If there is a new combine, and it tries to make the producers and merchants pay more than the agreed percentages for storage and handling—"

"I know," the major cut in. "You'll see it rise up in the majesty of your wrath and put it out of business by terminating the leases. I hope you may; I certainly do hope you may. But you'll recollect that I didn't advise you on that point, sir. You took Hatch's opinion. Maybe the courts will hold with you, but, candidly, Graham, I doubt it—doubt it right much."

The boss didn't seem to be much moved over the doubt. He just smiled and said he'd be likely to find out what was in the wind, and that before very long. Then he spoke of Hatch's afternoon call at our offices, and mentioned the fact that the Red Tower president would probably try to make the producers and merchants pay more than the agreed percentages for storage and handling—" drop, and he was working his way natively through the said course when he looked up to say:

"Was there anything in your trip to Strathcona to warrant Sheila's little telegraphic dungh signal, Graham?"

"Nothing worth mentioning," said the boss, without turning a hair; doing it, as I made sure, because he didn't want Mrs. Sheila to be mixed up in the plotting business, even by implication.

The major didn't press the inquiry any farther, and when he spoke again it was of an entirely different matter. "Away along in the beginning, somebody—I think it was John Chadwick—spoke of you as a man with a saw of red-head-and-bloody-bones temper, Graham; what have you done with that temper in these last few days?"

"The boss' smile was a good-natured grin.

"Temper is not always a matter of temperament, major. Sometimes it is only a means to an end. Much of my experience has been in the construction camps, where I have had to deal with men in the raw. Just the same, there have been moments within the past six months when I have been sorely tempted to burn the wires with a few choice words of the short and ugly variety and throw up my job."

"Which, as you may say, brings us around to President Duntun," put in the old lawyer shrewdly. "He is still opposing your policies?"

"Up to a few weeks ago he was still bounding me to do something that would boost the stock, regardless of what the something should be, or of its effect upon the permanent value of the property."

"Did I understand you to say that these—uh—suggestions from Duntun had stopped?" the major inquired.

"Temporarily," at least. "I haven't heard anything from New York—not lately."

"Then Duntun's nephew hasn't made himself known to you?"

"Collingwood? Hardly. I'm not in Mr. Howie Collingwood's set—which is one of the things I have to be thankful for. But this is news: I didn't know he was out here."

The news-giver bent his head gravely in confirmation of the fact.

"His head, I'm sorry to say, Graham. He has been head-on with some little time, vibrant round with the Gileshys and the Gileshys and a lot of the new-rich people up at the airport."

It was the boss' turn to go silent, and I could guess pretty well what he was thinking. The presence of President Duntun's nephew in the West might mean much or nothing. But I could imagine the boss was thinking that his own single experience with Collingwood was enough to make him wish that the nephew of Big Money would stay where he belonged—among the high-rollers and spenders of his own set in the effort East.

"I can't quite get the proper slant on men of the Collingwood type," he remarked, after the pause. "The only time I ever saw him was on the night before the directors' meeting last spring. He was here with his uncle's party in the special train, and that night at the Eluard he had been drinking too much and made a braying ass of himself. I had to knock him silly before I could get him up to his room."

"You did that, Graham?" for a stretch?"

"I did it for the comfort of all concerned. As I say, he was making an ass of himself."

There was another break, and then the major looked up with a little frown.

"That was before you had met Sheila?" he asked, thoughtfully.

"Why, no; not exactly. It was the same night—the night we all dropped off the 'Flyer' and got left behind at Sand Creek. You may remember that we came in later on Mr. Chadwick's special."

The major made no reply to this, and pretty soon the boss was on his feet and excusing himself once more, saying that he was obliged to go back to the office. The major got up and shook hands with him as if he were bidding him good-by for a long journey.

"You are going down to keep that appointment with Misch Ruffus Hatch?" he said.

"You take an old man's advice, Graham, my boy, and keep your hand figuratively speaking, of course—on your gun. It runs in my mind, somehow, that you are going to be hit—and hit right hard. No, don't ask me why. Call it a rotten suspicion, and let it go at that. Come up to the house, afterward, if you have time, and tell me I'm a false prophet, sir; I hope you may."

The boss promised plenty cheerfully as to the calling part, as you'd know he would since he hadn't seen Mrs. Sheila for I don't know how long; and a few minutes later we were on our way, walking briskly, to keep the Fred May engagement with the chief of the grafters.

If you beat us there, we'll morally move over to the other side of your tracks to our old Red Tower houses, and yaris and go on doing business at the old stand."

The boss sat back in his chair, and I could tell by the set of his jaw that he was refusing to be panic-stricken. "You are taking altogether too much for granted, aren't you?" he put in mildly. "You are assuming that the courts will eventually nullify the terms of the ground-leases, or, if they do not, that the railroad company will mon, was a political place-hunter who had once been sheriff of Arrowhead county.

"You've kept us cooling our heels in your waiting-room for just about the last time, Mr. Norcross," he said, the spiteful way in which Hatch opened fire.

"We've come to talk straight business with you this trip, and it will be more to your interest than ours if you'll send your clerk away."

While they had been dragging up their chairs and sitting down, I had heard Fred May lock up his typewriter and go, and had been listening anxiously for some noise that would tell me Tarbell was on deck. I thought I heard the door of the outer office open again just as Hatch spoke and it comforted me a whole lot.

The boss didn't pay any attention to Hatch's suggestion about sending me away; acted as if he hadn't heard it. Opening his desk he took a box of cigars from a drawer and passed it. With this concession to the small hostilities the boss swung his chair to face the trio.

"My time is yours, gentlemen," he said; and Hatch jumped in like a man fairly spoiling for a fight.

"For six months, Norcross, you've been moving a pretty wide swath out here in the tall hills. You've been posing as a little tin-god before the people of this state, and all the while you've been knifing and slugging and black-jacking private-capital-and-private business wherever and whenever they have happened to get in your way. Now, at the end of the line, by Jupiter, we've got you dead to rights—you and your d-d railroad!"

"Cut out as many of the personalities as you can, and come to the point," suggested the boss quietly.

"You think I haven't any point to come to?" barked the grafter, with rising anger. "I'll show you! You thought you were the only original trust-buster when you started your scheme of locally owned elevators and warehouses and coal and lumber yards and ran us out of business. But I'm here to tell you that your fine-haired little deal to rob us began to die about as soon as it was born."

"How so?" inquired the boss.

"It wasn't a month before your little local stockholders began to get together and swap stock and sell it in a very short time the control of the whole string of local plants was in the hands of a hundred men. Today it's in the hands of less than twenty, with John Marshall at the head of them. Citizens' Storage & Warehouse is now a consolidated property, and John Marshall, Henckel and I control a majority of its stock. How does that strike you?"

"It strikes me that the people most deeply interested have been exceedingly faithful to sell their holdings. But that is strictly their own business, and not mine or the railroad company's."

"Wait," Hatch snarled. "It's going to be both yours and the railroad company's business, before you are through with it. Marrow, here, represents Marshall, and I represent Henckel and myself. What are you going to do about those ground leases?"

"Nothing at all, except to insist upon the condition under which they were granted by the railroad company."

"Meaning that you are going to try to hold us to the fixed percentage charge for handling, backing, loading, and unloading?"

"Meaning just that. If you raise the proportionate market price—storage on the producers and merchants, the leases will terminate."

"I thought that was about where you'd land. Now listen: we're it Marshall and Henckel and I—and what we say, goes as it lies. We are going to use the present C. S. & W. plants and equipment, clearing out

"I could see that the boss barely glanced at the list. The gist story of the bribery was like the bite of a slipping crane-bitch—slow to take hold. So far as we were concerned, of course, the charge felt flat; and upon any other hypothesis it was blankly incredible, unbelievable, absurd."

"The affidavits themselves would be much more convincing," I heard the boss say, "though even then I should wish to have reasonable proof that they were genuine."

Hatch was sitting down again and his grin showed his teeth unpleasantly.

"Do you think for a minute that I'd bring the papers here and trust them in your hands?" he rapped out insultingly. "Not much! But we've got them all right, as you'll find out if you talk and force us to use them."

At this point I could see that something in the persistent assurance of the man was getting under the boss' skin and giving him a cold chill. What if it were not the colossal bluff it had looked like in the beginning? What if... Like a blaze of lightning out of a clear sky a possible explanation hit me under the fifth rib, and I guess it hit the boss at about the same instant. What if President Duntun and the New York stock-jobbers, believing as they did that nothing but legislative favor would give them their trading capital in the depressed stock, had cut in and done this thing without consulting us?

The boss stirred uneasily in his chair and picked up the paper-knife—a little unconscious trick of his when he wanted time to gather himself.

"Perhaps you would be willing to give me the name of this briber, Mr. Hatch?" he said, after a little pause.

"Do nothing to save its patrons from falling into this new graft trap."

Hatch snapped his fingers. "Now you are coming to the milk in the coconut!" he rapped out. "That is exactly what we're assuming. You are going to let go, once for all, Norcross. You are not going to fight us in the courts, and neither are you going to harass us out of existence with short cuts, over-charges, and the thousand and one petty persecutions that you railroad-buccaneers make use of to line your own pockets!"

"But if we refuse to lie down and let you walk over us and our patrons—what then?" the boss inquired.

That brought the explosion, Hatch's eyes blazed and he snarled fast into palm.

"Then we'll knife you, and we'll do it to a velvet finish! After so long a time, we've got you where you can't side-step, Norcross."

The boss refused to be panic-stricken; or, anyhow, he looked that way.

"We have heard that kind of talk many times in the past," he said. "The way to make it effective is to produce the goods."

"That's just what we're here to do," snapped the Red Tower president vindictively. "You, and the Big Fellows in New York, want a lot of the state railroad laws repealed or amended. If you can't get that string untied, you can't handle any more with your stock. Well and good. You came here six months ago and set out to manufacture public sentiment in favor of the railroad. You ran up your 'quid-pro-pleased' flag and beat the totem and blew the howling until you got a lot of dots and checkmarks and easy marks to believe that you really meant it."

"Well, go on."

"With all this humming and bull-balloo you still couldn't be quite certain that you had made your point; that your measures would carry through the incoming legislature. After the primaries you counted noses among the candidates and found it was going to be a tight squeak—a d-d tight squeak. Then you did what you railroad people always do; you slipped out quietly and bought a few men—just to be on the safe side."

So it was spring at last. Hatch was accusing us of the one thing that we hadn't done; that the boss knew we hadn't done.

"I'm afraid you'll have to try again, Mr. Hatch," he said, with a sour little smile. "Then he added: 'Anybody can make charges, you know.'"

Hatch jumped to his feet and he was almost forming his mouth.

"Right there is where we've got you," he snarled. "You were trying to put one of your own men in the lead, so you sent outside for your briber. He was a stranger, and he had to have help in finding the right man to buy. Dedon, here, was out of a job—thanks to you and your measliness—and the steering staff of a good ship. Do you want any more?"

"The boss shook his head.

"It is a matter of complete indifference to me. I don't know in the least what you are talking about, and you'll pardon me, I hope, if I say that it doesn't greatly interest me."

"By heavens—I'll make it interest you! The easy-mark candidates were found and lured and held for—and maybe they'll stay bought, and maybe they won't. But that isn't the point. For a little more money—my money, this time—each of these men has made an affidavit to the fact that railroad money was offered him. They don't say whether or not they accepted it, mind you, and that doesn't cut any figure. They have sworn that the money was tendered. That lets them out and lets you in. You don't believe it? I'll show you!" and Hatch whipped a list of names from his pocket and slapped it upon the boss' desk. "Go to those men and ask them; if you want to carry it that far. They'll tell you."

"I could see that the boss barely glanced at the list. The gist story of the bribery was like the bite of a slipping crane-bitch—slow to take hold. So far as we were concerned, of course, the charge felt flat; and upon any other hypothesis it was blankly incredible, unbelievable, absurd."

"As if you didn't know it!" was the scoffing retort. "There were two of them; one who was hit to 'do the talking while the real wire-puller stood aside and held the coin bag. We'll skip the hired man." Write out the ex-sheriff."

The name of the big-bagholder for him, Dedmon," he commanded, tearing a leaf from his pocket note-book and thrusting it, with a stubby pencil, into Dedmon's hands.

The man from Arrowhead county bent over his knee and wrote a name on the slip of paper, laying the slip on the drawn-out slide of the boss' desk when he had finished the slow penciling. The effect of the thing was all that any plotter could have desired. I saw the boss' face go gray, saw him stare at the slip and heard him say, half to himself, "Howard Collingwood."

Hatch followed up his advantage promptly. He was afoot and struggling into his overcoat when he said: "You've got what you were after, Norcross."

"We have heard that kind of talk many times in the past," he said. "The way to make it effective is to produce the goods."

SAVED FROM KNIFE BY TIME-LY ACTION.

Battle Creek Woman Told How Goitre Was Reduced by External Home Remedy.

Note: It would be illegal to publish these statements if they were not true.

Mrs. Roy E. Ashley, 316 Cherry St., Battle Creek, Mich., says in her own home paper, the Enquirer-News: "Sorbol Quadruple has saved me from an operation. It relieved me of terrible headaches, nervousness, staggering, choking and fainting spells. I was hoarse at times and had many sleepless nights. My goitre has been growing seven years. After I had used Sorbol Quadruple 3 weeks it was 1 1/2 inches smaller. I cannot praise Sorbol Quadruple too much. My neck does not bother me any more. I will be glad to help anyone by answering inquiries."

Sorbol Quadruple comes in small bottles containing enough for most cases. It will not stain or irritate. Does not interfere with regular work. Leaves parts in healthful, normal condition. Requires 10 minutes daily.

GO NO FARTHER.

The Evidence Is at Your Door.

Grayling proof is what you want and the statement of this highly respected reporter will banish all doubt: F. D. Griffin, Prop. blacksmith shop, Grayling, says: "Some years ago I was in poor shape with kidney trouble. At that time I was working in the saw mill and heavy lifting put my kidneys out of order. Mornings I was troubled with backache and my back felt tired out, weak and very lame. Sharp, stinging pains darted through my back and when I went to pick up a board and started to straighten up an awful shock went through me. I had to drop the board and was carried to my home by a friend. I was laid up for two weeks. Often when I raised up things looked smoky before me and those black specks made me dizzy and often brot on headaches. My kidneys were in a poor condition and I would have to get up two or three times every night. The secretions burned in passage and were badly colored. I had heard a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills and I decided to try them. I purchased a few boxes and they fixed me up in great shape. I am now at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y."

BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION.

"For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Digestive preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been today had I not tried Chamberlain's Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, helping the system to do its work naturally, writes Mrs. Rosa Potts, Birmingham, Ala.—Advertisement."

ALL firemen under the supervision of the Fire Chief in the handling of the fire apparatus at all fires are instructed to obey all orders given by the Fire Chief.
